Meet One of Our Engineers

Earlier this half term, we asked one of our Y10 Engineering students, Zhou, about her decision to take Engineering at GCSE. When asked why she chose this very popular course, she explained that she thought it would help her in the future if she wanted to get into industries such as civil engineering or architecture. Engineering is also a fantastic way of building a different set of skills than those usually found in the classroom, and from building houses to skyscrapers this pathway could open up a world of future opportunities. Whilst Zhou said she enjoyed her course, it certainly isn't for the faint hearted. As a practical subjects there's lots of hands-on, hard work work required in order to be successful and achieve.

Both our Engineering and Construction courses provide important opportunities to those wishing to potentially get a head start on a future career in the infrastructure industry. This half term, we welcomed in representatives from Bellway homes, who spoke to Y10 Construction students about designing homes for the future and the kind of projects are students can aspire to work on in just a few years time.

Sporting Star

Megan in Y8 is one of Newhouse's Sporting Stars. From athletics to handball, her passion is sport, evidenced in the many awards she has received at school, club and even county level. When asked why she enjoys sport so much, Megan explained that she enjoys competing and that it's a fun way to stay healthy and keep fit.

She began competing in different sports some years ago and regularly competes in different cross-country running competitions throughout the year. Megan would urge everyone to try sport and to keep on trying until they find the one they can be passionate about, even if they just play for fun. In our Spring Term assemblies Megan was awarded with the Our People Award for displaying our values.

Earlier this month a number of KS3 students completed an experience run by The Prince's Trust. This charity, founded by His Majesty King Charles III in 1976, aims to grant opportunities to young people aged 11-30 that they may not otherwise experience. Their goal is to prepare participants for the world, to build confidence and teach new skills and to give everyone the opportunity to succeed. To date, The Prince's Trust has worked with over a million young people and we are proud that Newhouse Academy students can be counted in that number.

Our students took part in the trust's Achieve Transition Programme which aids the move from KS3 into KS4. This two-week programme took place from Wednesday 8th February to Friday 10th February and from Wednesday 15th February to Friday 17th February and was well enjoyed by those who took part. Students had the opportunity to take part in sessions which focused on; personal development and employability, life skills, community projects and skills-boosting activities. In talking to students who took part, many enjoyed going rock climbing, cooking, going on walks and lots of other activities. They also said that they enjoyed the experience as a whole and finished the programme feeling more confident with improved social and teamwork skills.
